Meandering

By WASH FAYETTE

I just had a letter from John Callender. . . he's in the navy now. . . training at the Great Lakes Base. . . I didn't know him personally. . . just to speak to and that he is a fine boy. . . but about the reason John wrote to me. . . he had a purpose and an important one. . . just let me quote his letter. . . it tells the story better than I could:

"After having read your paper for several years, I realize what a source of enjoyment it might prove to several of my less fortunate shipmates. I have noticed they are quite dejected when they do not receive mail from home and their girls. I thought maybe some of my former neighbors and girl acquaintances might be willing to bolster the morale of these men."

Well, there it is girls. . . it's up to you to help keep these boys who are fighting for you and your country in good spirits. . . seems a little enough thing to do. . . and wouldn't it be fun, too. . . who knows what might come of a bit of friendly correspondence. . . after the war.

John sent the names of four shipmates. . . here they are:

Robert L. Littlefield, seaman, first class.
Edmund Aniz, seaman, first class.
Carl Hetchler, A. S.
Russ Stoms, A. S.

The address of all of them is Company 514, U. S. Naval Training Station, Great Lakes, Illinois.

Just saw Clark (Mick) McDole standing in front of Haver's Drug Store. He is here spending the day with friends.

"Last time I saw you was five or six years ago, coming out of the Ohio Theater about 11:30 o'clock one night," he recalled. "Mick" at one time carried the Daily Herald here.

"I first got a job selling extras after the Stutson or Masonic Temple fire back in 1911, and then followed it with a regular route," he said. At one time "Mick" did a little cubbing" on the news end of the old paper.

He is now cashier in the State Liquor store on Town Street in Columbus.

"Mick" has a distinctive French twist to that mustache of his that causes one to look twice before he is recognized as the "Mick" we knew here a score of years ago.

Along comes Ennis Stevens, caretaker of the Bloomingburg Cemetery, who spent most of his life on the farm and gave me an ear of corn, or rather what originally started out to be an ear of corn, but which in reality is a cluster of seven ears.

While the grains are not fully developed, that corn certainly strained a point to take part in the "food for victory" movement.

Thanks a lot, Ennis, for bringing that cluster of ears into the office.

By the way, I just want to say that Ennis is doing a notable piece of work in looking after that tract of land so sacred to the hearts of a great many people, both in the Bloomingburg community and elsewhere, who have loved ones resting there.

Remember the canteloupe with the "V" in the meat that Mrs. W. L. O'Brien cut a couple of weeks ago? . . . and how she said it gave her a queer feeling?

Well, maybe you don't believe in signs. . . neither do I. . . but Mrs. O. L. Wiseman of Jeffersonville just called the office. . . the first thing she said was: . . . "Something happened this morning that gave me the queerest feeling. . . I cut a canteloupe and there in the meat was a perfect "V" about an inch long" . . . she added that had she cut the melon any place else the "V" wouldn't have been found. . . all very strange. . . yes, all very queer. . . isn't it. . . you know "V" stands for victory in this war.

Mrs. Wiseman said she bought the canteloupe at Donald Moore's on West Court Street.

MORE JAP WARSHIPS SUNK

Ship 'Pool' Is Considered
By United Nations To Keep
U. S. Supplies Flowing

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(P)—Bluff, outspoken Admiral William D. Leahy become President Roosevelt's chief of staff today amid disclosures of a grave crisis in the shipping situation and of sharpening warfare off Alaska.

There was immediate speculation that the President would create a supreme Army-Navy general staff about the granite-faced sailor and diplomat who listens long and talks short and who represented at Vichy America's friendship for a broken France.

Mr. Roosevelt announced Leahy's appointment late yesterday and said the Admiral would assume his duties immediately. Confronting the chief of staff as he took office was a report by the war shipping administration that shipping losses during the week of July 12 were the highest since the war began and that sinkings of United Nations vessels have greatly exceeded new construction.

3 Jap Ships Sunk
The Navy, meanwhile, announced the sinking of three more Japanese destroyers by United States submarines in the vicinity of the Aleutian Islands of Kiska. This brought Japan's losses in the Aleutian area to six destroyers one transport and one cruiser sunk; one destroyer probably sunk; and four cruisers, two destroyers, one aircraft carrier, one gunboat and one transport damaged.

These 18 ships sunk and damaged went to pay for Japanese occupation of three islands—Kiska, Attu and Agattu—all at the western extreme of the Aleutian chain. The Navy said that Army bombers recently made several attacks on the Japanese encampment at Kiska and on ships in Kiska Harbor.

"United States Army and Navy aircraft are continuing joint operations against the enemy forces the communiqué concluded.

Shipping Crisis
On the shipping crisis, the shipping administration gave this report:

Shipping losses during the week of July 12 reached their highest level since the beginning of the war. While construction in American shipyards is breaking all records, sinking of United Nations ships through enemy action and marine casualties have greatly exceeded new construction.

Shortage of Meat
Developes in Ohio
Over Price Ceiling

AKRON, July 22.—(P)—A meat shortage developed today in this rubber capital and Birkett Williams, regional OPA administrator at Cleveland, immediately sent an investigator to inquire into packers' reports that deliveries here were off 50 to 75 percent because of new price regulations.

Some stores reported they were out of meat and the proprietor of a concern with five stores said he had only five head of dressed cattle in his refrigerators against a normal 30.

President George Galat of the Galat Packing Co. declared the shortage was "due to an impossible situation which was created when OPA set ceiling prices on wholesale and retail prices of meat but failed to put a ceiling on the price of livestock."

"Cattle are now selling on the roof for approximately $2 a hundredweight more than in March, when ceiling prices were established. The result is the packers simply cannot afford to pay the present prices, sell at March prices, and still show a profit. Rather than operate at a loss, they have greatly reduced their livestock purchases and as a result."

She was willed a $75,000 estate by her late mistress, Mrs. Nina Belinger of Detroit, who received "Lady Pooh" from her daughter, Mrs. Cecil Engbreton. The daughter is now suing to break the will and collect the estate.

GERMANY'S RUBBER
SUPPLIED BY JAPANShips Making Trip Around
South America

LONDON, July 22.—(P)—Japan already is supplying Germany with a trickle of raw materials, chiefly rubber, from her Pacific conquests probably by running the blockade around Cape Horn at the tip of South America, a Ministry of Economic Warfare spokesman said today.

The economic contact between the Axis partners probably is made by ships which can travel the 17,000 mile route without refueling, the spokesman said.

He emphasized it was difficult to control movements of isolated ships because of the secrecy with which they leave Pacific ports and because they do not use radios en route.

CAIRO, July 22.—(P)—Allied bombers and fighters ranged far over and beyond the El Alamein front yesterday to blast large concentrations of Axis vehicles and attack Marshal Erwin Rommel's supply base in Crete as the desert ground fighting settled into artillery duelling, British general headquarters reported today.

Suda Bay, island of Crete, was attacked "in force" and direct hits were scored on two vessels, the communiqué reported. A near miss was scored on a larger ship and a pier was set afire.

In the central sector of the 40-mile desert front, Allied bombers attacked a concentration of about 1,000 Axis vehicles and started many fires, the communiqué said.

Large forces of German parachute troops have been reported concentrated on Crete.

In the actual desert fighting yesterday, action was confined mainly to artillery fire at the northern end of the front west of El Alamein, it was reported.

Judge McClelland's decision came during a hearing on a protest by Colonel Baldinger against the Brysonian Dance Hall, located south of Columbus at Shadeville.

"I am training men 18 years old and must insist that there is no temptation," Colonel Baldinger said. "I have had one serious accident down there. If I have another I must attribute it to either drunkenness or late hours."

JAPS DRIVEN BACK IN FIGHT IN CHINA

CHUNGKING, July 22.—(P)—The Chinese have recaptured Kienteh, 65 miles southwest of Hangchow, main Japanese base in Chekiang province, after a five-day battle which ended Sunday, the high command announced today.

The war bulletin said fighting was continuing around the Chekiang coast port of Wenchow from which the Chinese are trying to drive the invaders for a second time.

The Chinese said yesterday that they were gaining an upper hand in the fight and had cut the Japanese lines of communications around the port.

RUSSIANS LAUNCH COUNTER DRIVE

While farther south the Germans still press their drives toward Rostov and Stalingrad, the Russians have wrested the initiative from the Nazis on the Voronezh sector, driving the enemy from the east bank of the Don river. Allied Air Attack
Is Worrying Hitler

(By The Associated Press)
The aerial offensive with which the British are whipping up at German power in western Europe, disconcerting the foe in advance of any more forthright second front action, cut with destructive, fiery force last night at Duisburg and other Ruhr Valley targets.

The raids in the Duisburg area at the confluence of the Ruhr and Rhine rivers, part of Germany's great western industrial belt, were the work of 300 planes, and from these and "intruder" actions over enemy airbases in France and the low countries during the night 13 bombers were missing.

The prospect of imminent United States army air force participation in Britain's based attacks on the German rear was stressed indirectly in London dispatches which also sharpened speculation when Russia might be relieved of some of the current German pressure toward Stalingrad, Rostov and the Caucasus oil fields.

It was reliably disclosed in London that several new airbases had been built to accommodate the growing air forces of the United States in the British Isles and while members of the American force are seen in increasing numbers in Britain they have yet to join the RAF in its powerful assaults on Germany.

The first bombers bearing United States insignia have appeared over London. The United States forces will go into action as a separate unit, not only with bombers but also with their own fighters and reconnaissance planes.

"Many large and widespread fires" were kindled last night at Duisburg, the British ministry said. The city had been laid at night on July 13 and the Germans said it was attacked by daylight last Saturday.

In German counter-action against Britain, a few bombs were dropped last night at scattered points in the east of England, the British announced. Some damage but no casualties were reported. One of the attacking planes was destroyed.

With British and U. S. military and political leaders in London engaged in strategy talks, the British press with peculiar editorial unanimity suddenly reverted to virtual silence today on the second front question.

INTERNAL REVENUE
IN OHIO IS DOUBLED

COLUMBUS, July 22.—(P)—Ohio's internal revenue collections totaled $923,253,162 during the fiscal year ended June 30—more than double the $429,938,982 paid last year—tentative figures announced in Washington showed today.

Corporations paid $279,319,708 in taxes, compared with $119,860,085 last year, and individual income taxes totaled $204,961,214, more than triple the $76,405,227 collected in 1941.

National collections totaled $13,047,084,333 in 1942 and $7,370,108,377 for 1941.

Other concerns in the building which were completely burned out were the wire mill of Maurath, Inc. and the Latex Processing Co. Badly damaged was the Lakeside Biscuit Co.'s warehouse. Flames missed a state liquor wholesale store and the United Plastics Corp.

STALINGRAD MENACED TOO

Russians, However, Launch
Offense To Take Bridgeheads
In Battle of Voronezh

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH

(By The Associated Press)
The Germans proclaimed today that they had crossed the lower Don on a broad front, a deep step on the invasion route into the Caucasus, and that "organized" Russian defenses near Rostov, at the mouth of the Don, had collapsed with the guardian city encircled.

Russian and British advisers agreed with the enemy on the trend of the battle but not to such a degree as to admit that the strategic waterline had been breached and Rostov half surrounded.

At the same time the Red Army newspaper, Red Star, gravely announced that the Germans, pressing closer to Stalingrad, now were approaching the border of Stalingrad province, about 80 miles from the city itself.

"Terrible days face the country," Red Star said.

It called upon the Russian soldiers to emulate the heroic band of 28 who died fighting German tanks barehanded in the snows before Moscow last winter.

In offensive action, the Russian air force bombed Koenigsberg, East Prussian Port, again last night.

British military sources conceded that small German armored forces may have reached the lower Don and said "there is no denying the danger to Rostov" from this and related operations.

The Germans seemed to be converging on Rostov from three directions: from Taganrog, 40 miles to the west; from Voroshilovgrad, 100 miles to the north, and from Millerovo, 130 miles to the north northeast.

The Russians officially acknowledged a continuing retreat over the scorched earth and dynamited coal fields of the Don basin, from Voroshilovgrad south-eastward, and British sources voiced fear that large Russian forces in a salient above Taganrog were threatened.

The British said that in the battle of Voronezh, some 300 miles north of Rostov, the Russians had wiped out all but one of the German bridgeheads across the upper Don for their siege of Voronezh, 10 miles east of the river.

The Russians reported their forces near Voronezh had wrested control of four Don crossings and that more than 10,000 of the foe had been killed in one week of fighting there.

The qualified successes of Russian counter-attacks at Voronezh, however, seemed to have little effect on the German drive across the Don steps toward Stalingrad and through the industrialized Don basin toward Rostov.

Russian dispatches in fact said that fresh tanks, planes and infantrymen were pouring into the Stalingrad thrust.

The German communiqué claimed the crossing of the Don had been effective east of the Donets River which debouches into the Don about 70 air line miles northeast of Rostov.

The Germans have called Rostov "the spigot of the Russian oil barrel." A vast pipeline system stretching southeastward from Rostov taps the oil fields of the Caucasus between the Black and Caspian seas. The Germans declared that Russian counter-attacks in the Voronezh region, north and northwest of the city, had been freshly repulsed and "in the rear of the central sector annihilation of additional enemy groups was completed."

Another Grave Threat To Russia Developing in Far North, Report

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

(Wide World News Service)

The Nazi menace to Rostov-on-Don naturally increases the danger to Soviet Marshal Timoshenko's general defensive strategy, but the capture of the city wouldn't in itself represent a disaster.

Rostov is situated on the right, or northern, bank of the great River Don. The line in which Timoshenko presumably will make a stand ultimately if the German advance continues will be along the left or southern bank.

The Don presents a formidable barrier to any advancing army, especially at its mighty mouth near Rostov. Therefore we needn't put the Hitlerites across it at least until they come to it.

Should the invaders finally force a crossing they would have Timoshenko's left flank in a precarious position. A more immediate threat is the possibility the Nazis may try to invade the Caucasus from the Crimea, across the Kerch strait, and thus attack the Russian positions on the Don from the rear.

However, the Red defenses on the strait presumably are strong. While Soviet Marshal Timoshenko coolly manipulates his hard-pressed forces under the terrific assault of a million-man Nazi army at the gateway to the Caucasus, way up on the northern extremity of Russia's two-thousand mile front there is developing against the Reds another grave threat which is correlated with the southern offensive.

I am reliably informed that the Germans are concentrating heavy forces in Finland, preparatory to a major attack against the Soviet Arctic port of Murmansk. Hitler's hope is to make a quick conquest of this vital rail-head and thereby cut one of Russia's two remaining feasible lifelines to the outside world, the other being the cumbersome route through the Persian Gulf.

To put it bluntly, our mighty Russian ally, with a sixth of the entire land space of the globe and with a diversity of resources which make it virtually self-contained, is drawing terribly close to a dangerous lack of supplies, both military and foodstuffs. The time may come when she will need bread from Uncle Sam.

Long ago when Hitler's effort to conquer Europe still was young, this column ventured the view that kernels of grain would have more to do with ultimate victory than would bullets. That's increasingly true.

With the destruction of Europe's farm lands, and the severance of communications, the little kernel of grain is becoming a mighty factor.

The Allied blockade of Europe has squeezed Hitler so hard that the chief reason for his present great offensive is to break through to fresh supplies. Unfortunately for the Allies, however, they haven't been able to retain exclusive use of this economic garrote, and the Nazi leader is struggling to fasten it about Russia's throat.

Marshal Timoshenko's task is more than that of preserving his armies from annihilation and preventing a break-through into the Caucasus. It also is to keep Hitler from cutting the Reds off from the vital supplies of south-eastern Russia and the Caucasus.

Timoshenko's tactics for carrying out his Herculean assignment apparently project a stand on the great bend of the Don River where it curves deeply eastward into the fertile steeps that guard the route to Caucasian oil and other treasures. But stand or no stand, every yard the Germans advance means the destruction of grain fields and other resources upon which the Soviet has been depending. This territory, and the Ukraine which already has succumbed to the scorched earth policy of the Reds, formed Russia's main source of breadstuffs.

Russia's supply problem is becoming more seriously daily. Vladivostok already has been lost to us as a port through

BROWN RESIGNS AS DIRECTOR OF COUNTY RELIEF

Goes in as Senior Clerk of Rationing Board Here On August 3

Tolen E. Brown, who for the past three years has held the position of Fayette County relief director and county certifying agent for the WPA, has resigned to become senior clerk with the Fayette County Rationing Board. He takes his new position August 3.

The resignation of Brown was quietly presented to the county commissioners last Monday and was accepted with regret by that board whose members state that Brown has proven a reliable and capable man for the difficult place during the past several years when relief demands and county finances were such as to require some one who knew how to say "no" more often than to grant such requests.

It was stated Wednesday that Howard H. Lloyd has been named to take the place made vacant by Brown's resignation. Lloyd has been relief investigator for Washington C. H. for the past year.

The county rationing board which is constantly being assigned new duties by the federal government for the duration of the war, is requiring more clerical help under the increased volume of work thrust upon it and at present, has three paid clerks on the job. Brown, as senior clerk, will make the fourth. The others are Miss Jean West, Mrs. Wilma H. Hastings and Mrs. Doris G. Diffendal.

WEBBER FRENCH PLANT CLOSED BY WAR BOARD

Closing Order Ends Work at Local Plant and 25 Men Lose Jobs

Under an order issued by the War Production Board this week, the Webber C. French plant, which manufactures hog feeders equipment, was closed, probably for the duration of the war.

French said Wednesday that he first received notice from the Farm Equipment department of the War Production Board, ordering the closing by reason of vital need of metal used in hinges, etc., as well as lumber.

He said that two inspectors then came to this city Monday and the plant was formally closed, and that three government men were checking all records of production and making a complete inventory of material on hands.

French said the closing and visit of the two inspectors, as well as the inspection now being made of the firm's books was routine work of the board.

Last April the French plant was curtailed in production, and some 50 of the 75 men were dropped from employment as result of the order.

Later, he said a supplemental order, permitting manufacture of a limited amount of equipment from material on hands, was issued, and partial production was continued until the closing order came this week.

The letter ordering the closing mentioned the fact that no more metal or lumber could be permitted for manufacture of hog feeders, by reason of the tremendous demand for both materials for the war effort.

SIMPLE SERVICES FOR DROWNED BOY

Burial at Milledgeville Tuesday Afternoon

Funeral services for William Wendell Rinehart, who drowned in Sugar Creek near Parrotts Station last Sunday, were held at the Morrow Funeral Home in Jeffersonville at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in charge of Rev. Frank Sollars who read a prepared memorial tribute and delivered the sermon.

The two hymns, "Rock of Ages" and "I Need Thee" were sung by Mrs. Nona Knisley and Mrs. Lola Losey to complete the simple but impressive services.

Four young men—Peter Swift, Bert Rinehart, Charles Paul and Percy Rinehart—carried the casket to its final resting place in the Milledgeville Cemetery.

PIERSON PRAISED BY SCHOOL BOARD

Coach's Resignation Accepted As He Enters Service

The resignation of Coach Fred Pierson was accepted "with regret" by the city board of education at its Tuesday night meeting but no action toward filling the vacancy was taken.

Pierson had written to Superintendent A. B. Murray saying that he had received his commission in the United States Coast Guard. It was for this reason that he resigned and, by the same token, his resignation was accepted. Members of the board and school officials joined in expressions of good will and good luck for the man who directed the WHS football and basketball teams last season. But, they frankly admitted that it would be no easy task to find qualified coaches because so many of them had gone into the service of the country with the armed forces.

Only one of last season's regular coaching staff is left, Supt. Murray said. He is Leon Morris and school officials said they had no assurance that he would not join the others in the service, possibly before the fall term opens.

The board has tendered contracts to most of the teachers, and the complete list will be ready in the near future, it was said.

"WISE MAN NEVER 'PASSES BUCK' TO SELF!"

The Chinese may not know much about cars, but they sure know human nature! There was a time not so long ago, when a lot of car owners were careless about changing oil every 1,000 miles. After all, why bother when you traded in the old bus for a new model every year or two? Let the "next fellow" worry about taking care of it.

But the war has changed all that. Cars must stay in action years longer. And the car owner who still goes on leaving it to the "next fellow" will suddenly discover that he has actually been "passing the buck" to himself—something a wise man never does, as our Chinese friends remind us.

So change oil regularly—every 1,000 miles. And for safe, dependable protection at low cost, use SOHIO Motor Oil. It's premium-quality, yet sells at the non-premium price of only 25¢ a quart, plus taxes.

Reds Being Rebuilt With Young Players Who Are Coming Up

By GABRIEL PAUL
(By the Associated Press)

CINCINNATI—The Reds are following the same policy now that they did several years ago, when they put together the team that produced two National League and a world's championship for Cincinnati. They are rebuilding with younger fellows who are on the upgrade, and when you closely look at the roster, you realize just how many changes have been made since last year.

All of the outfielders except Mike McCormick and Ival Gooden are new this year. Bert Haas and Damon Phillips are new infielders and Ray Lamanno and Al Lakeman are catching additions. Ray Starr and Clyde Shoun are new hurlers.

Latest of the players added to the Reds' roster are outfielders Eric Tipton and Frank Kelleher. Tipton came from Kansas City for a pile of cash and the contract of Harry Craft, while Kelleher came from Newark. To get him the Reds gave cash and the contracts of Joe Abreu and Jim Turner.

Both Kelleher and Tipton compiled spectacular records in the minors, Kelleher as a home run socker, and Tipton as a hard battling, all around good ball player. Their records indicate that they are the type that a club needs in a rebuilding program.

With their good pitching, as soon as the Reds find the necessary balance in the remainder of the lineup, they'll be in a position to really go places.

At present, the Reds are in the east for their third trip, which opened against the toughest opposition, Brooklyn and New York. They were to play Brooklyn Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday evening, while the New York engagement calls for single games Friday and Saturday and a twin bill Sunday.

Return to Crosley Field is scheduled for August 4, which will be the occasion for a ladies' day. St. Louis will be the opposition. The Cards also will oppose the Reds in a night game the following night, which will be Shrine Night. The Shriners of this vicinity will put on one of the greatest pre-game shows ever staged at Crosley Field.

Trotting Stake Will Be Preview Of Hambletonian

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., July 22—(P)—In the national stake for three-year-old trotters, the grand circuit offers at the Kite Track here today an advance showing of the $40,000 Hambletonian, top event of the year in light harness racing.

Nine of the ten trotters entered in today's feature, worth $9,078, are eligible for the big stake to be raced at Goshen, N. Y., August 12, and include the early favorite, Colby Hanover from the Fred Egan stable. Egan also has named Morate to go today. Pay Up, winner of last week's matron stake at Roosevelt Raceway Cannon Ball, Blue Boy and Paxton Hanover are other strong contenders.

Dr. Hugh M. Marshall drove King's Counsel to a new record—2:01 1-4—for a two-year-old pacer in winning yesterday's $5,000 stake. The old mark was 2:02.

Greene Re-elected Mogul of Boxing

NEW YORK, July 22—(P)—In an election held by mail because war forced cancellation of its coming convention, the national boxing association today named Abe J. Greene the first president ever to succeed himself as the head of boxing's biggest ruling body.

The annual conclave, slated for New Orleans in mid-September, has been called off, the organization explained in its announcement, "at the request of New Orleans and in accordance with the suggestion of Joseph B. Eastman, director of the office of defense transportation."

NEW YORK, July 22—Scoop: Gus Lesnevich will get leave from the Navy to defend his light-heavyweight title sooner than even he expects. Ray Lamanno may be A-1 in the hearts of Cincinnati fans—but he's 1-A with Uncle Sam now. John Begala, the ex-racing coach at Kent State (Ohio) University, is the top teacher of the rough stuff the Navy's giving its pre-flight cadets. And he looks more like a bank clerk than a tough guy, too. Arlington betting is up 22 percent this summer—averaging $550,000 a day. If that's the way, let's be a horse. Joe Oregano, the ex-card and Giant, is on the trading list again—this time with Jersey City.

Kidding on the Level
Al Schacht has quit taking days off from his clowning this summer. When he isn't doing his stuff for baseball crowds, he's out steaming up war bond sales at factories, or working his gags for the boys at army and navy camps. Incidentally, Mr. Fugitive from Barnum and Bailey's is opening a restaurant here in the early fall.

Hit-and-Run

Connie Mack has his eyes on Chuck Cavanaugh, a southpaw elbow who used to serve 'em up for Chicago U., and if Connie offers as much dough as Chuck's getting now in the "Stars on Ice" show in our town, he'll land the lad. Hopes for the coming Saratoga meeting are based largely on just what the Gee-Gees will draw from the defense plants around the spa. Jimmy Fox has had his eyes re-examined and found they were okay. That's why he didn't bother replacing the glasses he busted a couple of weeks ago.

Road to Trapshoot Crown Twice as Long This Year

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, July 22—(P)—The Grand American Handicap—most coveted, colorful and unpredictable of trapshooting championships—undergoes the first change in its 43-year history next month in the annual million-target tournament at Vandalia, O.

The big barrage, expected to attract close to 1,000 of the nation's top drawer scattergun artists, is scheduled August 24-28. For 42 years the "Roaring Grand" program has called for the $10,000 handicap to be fired over the 100-target route.

This year, however, the handicap goes up to 200 targets, to be shot over two days. The preliminary handicap, usually fired the day before the Friday wind-up, has been erased and the first half of the $10,000 race takes its place.

Only one man has ever won the preliminary and then repeated in the next day's "Grand." R. R. Barber of Paulina, Ia., did it back in 1905. No shooter has ever won the preliminary twice, and the same holds good for the Grand.

The big handicap generally has gone to some novice or unknown. Last year 52-year-old Walter Lee Tulbert of Detroit, who had been shooting over the traps only a month, used a second-hand 4.03 shotgun to beat a field of 1,093 marksmen.

Another change this year calls for the women's 16-yard North American clay target title to be decided over the 200-target route, instead of at 100 yards.

17-INNING GAME NO SURPRISE TO FANS IN BOSTON

Braves Win Another of Those Marathon Affairs—Yanks Win Tenth in Row

By JUDSON BAILEY
(By The Associated Press)

Underneath the sign that says "Braves Field" at the National League ball park in Boston there should be added a line "home of extra-inning ball games."

Marathons disguised as baseball are the specialty of the Braves just as home runs are the trademark of the New York Yankees. For this reason that 17-inning struggle of the Braves and Chicago Cubs yesterday was bound to happen. It wasn't quite as historical as the 26-inning 1-1 tie between the Braves and Brooklyn in 1920, the most extended game in National League records, or the 20-inning battle with the Dodgers in 1940 which took five hours and 19 minutes to play—longest time of game in major league history.

But it was the longest game this season and the Braves won 4-3 in a unique finish. The Braves tied the score in the eighth with two runs and after eight more scoreless stanzas they loaded the bases with none out in the 17th on three successive bunts. Then old John Cooney stepped to the plate and rapped a smart single to right center to finish the fracas four hours and 17 minutes after it started.

While this was going on the Brooklyn Dodgers curbed the Cincinnati Reds 8-4 with 12 hits in six innings against Paul Derringer.

The St. Louis Cardinals kept the Dodgers from increasing their National League lead, however, by bowling over the Philadelphia Phils 6-1 in a night game.

Three home runs and Buster Maynard's two-run pinch single in the eighth inning gave Carl Hubbell and the New York Giants a 6-5 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates in a twilight game. New York's homers included one by Mickey Wittek in the third and two in succession by Manager Mel Ott and Johnny Mize in the sixth.

The New York Yankees extended their winning streak to ten games and Joe DiMaggio stretched his hitting streak to 18 games in an 8-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

The Boston Red Sox dropped a 10-inning 5-4 decision to Chicago to let the Yanks slip another game ahead.

The St. Louis Browns were held to four hits by Luman Harris and Phil Marchildon but beat the Philadelphia Athletics 4-3 on Walt Judnich's three-run homer in the first inning and a roundtripper by Harland Cliff in the second.

The Detroit Tigers broke Buck Newsom's spell with a 6-4 triumph over the Washington Senators on the five-hit hurling of Hal White.

Admission Price Is Raised to Dime

The admission price for the special game Thursday night with the American Legion battling Patterson Field team from Dayton, has been changed to ten cents per person, instead of the six cents.

The change was made because it is an away game, and more money must be taken in order to pay the expenses.

Unlucky Day For Starr in Dodger Game

BROOKLYN, July 22—(P)—Old Ray Starr, Cincinnati Reds pitcher, and his opposition for today, the Brooklyn Dodgers, both are up against that unlucky number 13.

Starr, named to pitch against Kirby Higbe, has lost three straight going after No. 13.

The Dodgers beat the Reds 8-4 yesterday for their twelfth victory in 17 games with the Redlegs.

A five-run rally in the second inning beat Paul Derringer and allowed Johnny Allen to grab his eighth victory for the Dodgers. Ten men went to bat in the big frame, and the Dodgers got five hits and a walk.

Rookie outfielder Eric Tipton hit a homer in the seventh for the Reds as a pinch-hitter.

LEGION BEATEN BY M. M. GRANGE IN WILD GAME

Free Hitting and Plenty Of Slugging Lead To Parade of Runs

The American Legion whipped the Madison Mills Grange softball team by a score of 17 to 10 Tuesday night at Wilson Field.

The Legion scored two runs in the first inning, one each in the second and third, seven in the fifth and three each in the sixth and seventh to give them a total of 17. The Grangers did better as the game progressed, they getting one run in the first inning, two in the third, three in the fifth and four in the seventh. Butterfield hit a home run in the fifth inning with two on and Brandenburg hit another homer in the sixth inning with one on. Both of these were Legion boys. Bentley of the Grange hit a home run also in the seventh inning with two others on.

Butterfield led the hitting of the game with four for four, a homer, a triple and two singles.

If the weather permits, St. Colman's will meet the Methodists on the Wilson Field diamond at 7 A. M. Wednesday night and Selden Grange will meet Alber's at 8:30 P. M.

Savold K. O.'s Bill Poland For 'Bomber for MacArthur'

TOLEDO, July 22—(P)—Lee

Savold, Des Moines, Ia., heavy-weight, blasted Bill Poland's strong bid for a major fistic upset last night with a vicious left which dropped the New York City belter in the ninth round of their scheduled 10-frame headline encounter in Toledo's "bomber for MacArthur" fistic show last night.

The pair battled evenly for three rounds, with Savold concentrating on a body attack and Poland landing hard overhand rights from long range.

In the fourth, the Toledo Boxing Commission ruled the Des

"THE EMPTY ROOM"

That is the caption of an advertisement, one of the most inspiring advertisements we have ever seen. The illustration shows a middle-aged man, standing alone and looking into a boy's bedroom. The text has him saying:

"This is my boy's room."

"This is where he slept."

"This is where he dreamed a child's dreams."

"This is where he saw a man's visions."

"Here, in this empty room, are faded pictures of teammates and heroes... books scribbled over with notes and exclamations... the gloves and spike shoes we hung up for good before he went to war... the silver cup he won at Sea Bright... bright pennants... and all the careless memoranda, the echoes of his days."

"If fathers could only pour their hate through the hot barrels of smoking guns and write the records of their grief with bayonet steel!"

"They said I was too old to fight, though I'm only 50."

"But, if I'm too old to sight and drop a stick of bombs, I'm not too old to lay my money on the line for War Savings Stamps and Bonds!"

"Maybe I am too stiff and slow to fly, but I've got control enough to keep my car speed under 40... so they can keep their fighting planes above 400!"

"And if I can't march 30 miles a day with a full pack, I can walk two miles to work and back to help save gas and rubber!"

"No, I'm not bitter any more because I won't win this war behind a gun or on a ship or in the sky."

"I've come around to thinking that here at home we've got the job of passing the ammunition along, of sacrificing little things, of giving up and going without, of looking ahead to 'less' instead of 'more.' Somebody's got to do the necessary, undramatic things... and I guess that's what older men are for."

To the United States Rubber Co., which sponsors this advertisement, and to the artist and the writer who prepared it, our thanks. Through the door of an empty room they have given us a glimpse beyond the squabbling and striving for advantage, the petty arguments and futile buck passing that sometimes seem to be the chief substance of our war effort here at home, into the real heart of America.—New York World Telegram.

MOORE FIELD, Texas.—(P)—The romantic aspirations of Staff Sgt. John A. Traeger, 504th School Squadron, were considerably thwarted recently.

After writing a letter to his girl friend in Seguin, Texas, he enclosed it in an envelope and addressed it to his maiden aunt in Hoboken, N. J. The letter written to his aunt was inserted in another envelope addressed to the girl friend.

Result: His girl friend received a "thank you" note for a delicious layer cake, and his aunt got an invitation to spend two weeks near here.

Today's Horoscope

Persons who have birthdays today are emotional, resourceful, and have sharply perceptive mentalities. Their talents are many, but they should devote their efforts to following one channel faithfully. They are friendly and just at all times. Good fortune will be experienced in many ways by them in the next 12 months, expected and unexpected. They should further their plans, and push well ahead in all business and financial matters. Born on this date a child will be very clever and successful in its undertakings, being far-seeing, original, industrious, and enterprising. Imposition on the good nature of this fine personality is to be feared, however.

velope is the principal reward. Those dollars are not the main thing gained.

The finding of a vacation job and the way the work of the job is done, constitute one of the most important experiences in the life of youth. The way the young people come out on those jobs often determines the kind of career they will choose, and the occupation they will be able to enter.

Success in performing the work of such a temporary position is a fine start on a successful life. If the youth can point to the vacation employer, and know that that employer will speak favorably of this worker if asked, it is a great help in getting permanent work later on. Also the lessons of fidelity and system and service are as valuable as anything found in books.

Washington at a Glance

By Charles P. Stewart

WASHINGTON — So far as large scale conquest is concerned, military men agree that this isn't an era of informal fighting. Huge armies are the order of the day, with oodles of training, thousands of ponderous tanks, countless tons of assorted heavy artillery and ammunition, and an infinity of technical skill to manipulate 'em.

Such massings of strength are required to overrun various countries or fractions of 'em, first beating down all concentrated opposition.

Subsequently, though, the guerrilla periods arrived at. Elmer Davis' Washington Office of War Information has been investigating it on the strength of reports especially from the Balkans and from Jap-occupied areas in China. Theoretically these regions are under subjection. In fact, however, their bands of only semi-organized snipers are a worse pest to the nominal victors than are big forces in opposition to 'em. An Axis Army, in battle with a foe that stands up against it and permits itself to be annihilated, isn't such a problem. Being licked, it's LICKED. But swarms of guerrillas, raiding and making their getaways before they can be exterminated, are a constant source of almost intolerable worry.

The Nazi system, of course, is to massacre the inhabitants of a whole village in the vicinity of any place where one of these attacks occurs.

All in Day's Work

Yet the guerrillas seem to say, "Oh, well, it's all in the day's work," and keep on at it. Indeed, the massacres victims apparently wink at it. They continue to give aid and comfort to the guerrillas regardless of the consequences, perhaps counting on escape, in each individual case.

At any rate, guerrilla warfare, while old-fashioned originally, seems to have been improved into something pretty modernly effective.

The plane is referred to as a mechanized recent development. Well, so it is mechanized, but isn't it a guerrilla-esque mechanization?

The OWI thinks so. Air raids by the British over Nazi-occupied continental Europe surely were guerrilla-esque performances. Their purpose wasn't to occupy any enemy positions immediately. Their aim simply was to harass the enemy beyond his endurance—just like hit-and-run guerrilla grounding tactics in the Balkans. Ditto that Doolittle scout over Japan.

Parachutists aren't anything but guerrillas; they're a suicidal bunch but they're not occupational. They can't land in sufficient numbers, but they can make mundane life intolerable.

The submarine's a guerrilla likewise. The Chinese are ideal guerrillas too, except that they lack the up-to-date equipment.

In short, the guerrilla business is a reversion to old methods, hitherto supposed to be ancient and forgotten, but now coming back into military style again.

Speaking of the plane: What that thing will do to civil life after the war's over is liable to be a caution.

Just now it's entirely monopolized for military purposes, but it's due to come into its civilian own as soon as it's turned loose over the world—as soon as it's released for ordinary passenger and commercial transportation usage.

Groceries by Plane?

The darned thing will haul passenger trains—gliders.

And freight trains also. It'll be surprising if grocery stores don't deliver orders to customers aviatorially.

There's talk of landing-strips, alongside highways, for planes to light on, so that the delivery-man can get off, chase across the street and get to your front door in a couple of minutes.

Nobody's afraid of a plane any more, either.

I can remember when anybody who got into one of 'em considered that he was risking suicide.

Right now there still are some few crashes, but no one pays a bit of attention to 'em—any more than we pay attention to an occasional railroad or automobile accident.

Maybe the darned things will rate as safe as surface traffic.

Treating Constipation According to Its Causes

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE CAUSES of constipation are varied, but the most important is that some individuals are born that way just as some individuals in the morning get dressed in a hurry and some individuals putter around and take hours and hours. It would be wrong to say that the one who gets dressed in a hurry has any better than the one who puttered around, or that the soul of either the one or the other was better or worse. The same thing is true about sluggish colons.

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

People are always worrying about being "intoxicated" with constipation. I think it is fair to say that this never happened in the history of the world. If a person with constipation begins to worry about it or thinks he is subject to auto-intoxication, he really is a goner. What you think about your constipation is by all odds the most important element in the physician's problem of treatment.

Constipation is a disease of civilization. The Eskimo has no word for it because the condition is unknown to him.

Eating Too Little

Another cause of constipation is eating too little. It doesn't make any difference whether you eat food that is classified as roughage or not; the Eskimo who lives mostly on meat is not constipated.

Nervous tension and strain will cause it. I have the record before me of a woman who was operated on several times for attacks so intractable that castor oil had no effect. Each time the attending surgeon thought she had an intestinal obstruction, but each time they found a normal looking bowel. The case was never solved until the woman admitted that each time she had fallen ill she had been trying to save a good-for-nothing son from prison for forging checks.

Too little roughage as a cause in a certain number of cases is easily overcome by the use of fruits and vegetables rather than concentrated foods such as eggs, white flour and sugar.

Too little water. Not enough attention is paid to this cause of constipation.

Use of Laxatives

The habitual use of laxatives. I would put this second in my list of causes. In nearly every case known to me this has been due to a habit which is generated by fear.

It is like the habit of taking sedatives at night: the person thinks he is not going to sleep so he takes a sleeping tablet before he finds out whether he is going to sleep or not. The same thing is true of cathartics. When an X-ray is made of these people they are warned not to take a cathartic in order to have the bowel functioning normally, and in 90 per cent of cases it empties automatically.

As a final cause I would like to put down old age and diverticulosis and the cases in which there is ptosis or dropping of the stomach and bowel.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

F. G.—I have had pain in my right shoulder which the doctor X-rayed and found to be a calcium deposit where the bone of the upper arm joins the shoulder. In your opinion is surgery the only remedy or would certain foods overcome this calcium tendency?

Answer: I do not believe any foods will overcome the calcium tendency but it is not always necessary to resort to surgery. In most cases lime and the use of heat and resting the shoulder will cause absorption.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

DIAN TOOK a long breath. "Suppose you have that dance with Aunt Martha now, Bill," she said.

Claire sat up. "Goodness, Dian, is he going to do that?"

"Certainly I am," said Bill. He got up. "I'll bet Miss Martha's a wonderful waltzer."

Jerome came over then. "May I have that dance now, Dian?" he asked. "It's a wait—wait—and that's the only thing I can do."

"Of course, Jerome," said Dian. She went to his arms, smiling. "Fretfully Bill was dancing with Miss Martha."

"I'll bet," he said, "that time was when you were the belle of Ardendale."

"Fiddlesticks!" said Miss Martha. But she was pleased. "I did go around quite a bit—but so many duties kept me from having a lot of fun. Is Dian a good dancer?"

"Splendid!"

"I'm afraid she hasn't had very much fun, either," said Miss Martha. "But everything'll be all right when she and Jerome are married."

"You think she'll have fun then?" Bill asked.

"Anyway, she'll have a lot of things she deserves—and won't have to worry about a lot of things she worries about now. Jerome will be good to her, and at least there won't be two spinsters in the Weston family."

"Does she love this man Jerome, do you think?"

"That's hard to say," Miss Martha replied. "But it will come in time."

"I'm not so sure about that, myself."

"You're not? Do you speak from experience?"

"Not exactly, no. But I know something about what it means to try to STOP loving someone."

"I see," Miss Martha nodded wisely. Then she said, "Here comes Jerome now—to break in on our dance. Do you mind?"

"Of course I mind," said Bill. "But if you want him to dance with you, I'll withdraw as gracefully as possible."

"Jerome hasn't asked me for a dance in ages!" said Miss Martha, and her eyes were actually shining. "Imagine!"

"You're all right, Miss Martha!" said Bill, just before he turned her over to Jerome. "If all spinsters were as well as you are, I'd vote that more women stop marrying."

Then he went over to Mrs. Smithers. He had suggested a dance, so courtesy demanded that he go through with it. But he was to regret it, since Mrs. Smithers apparently had the idea that the rumba was first cousin to a waltzing match.

Dian was talking to Mr. Smithers, but she watched Bill and his partner out of the corner of her eye, amused. Claire, sitting with Paul, watched also. But she wasn't amused. The idea, that woman making a monkey out of Bill in that fashion.

"Paul," she said, "do go rescue Bill."

"Why should I?" said Paul. "I didn't ask him to steer a battleship around the floor, did I?"

"Certainly not, but the least you can do is be nice to the older women as Bill is," Claire leaned toward the young man there with her. "Please, Paul. It won't be so difficult for you, since you dance the rumba much better than Bill does."

"Well, I'm glad to hear there's something I do better than he does," Paul got up. "But, remember, the last dance is mine—and you're sitting in front of my car with me. Get it?"

"Yes, Paul, I get it."

Paul broke in on Bill and Mrs. Smithers, while Claire waited eagerly for Bill to join her. This he did not do. He went over to where Dian and Mr. Smithers were sitting. She saw him lean close to Dian and say something, and she instantly regretted having asked Dian to make a foursome. She should have asked Sue Mason or some other girl who wasn't so easy on the eyes.

It wasn't until she and Dian were in the powder room of the club, preparing to go home, that Claire had very much to say. She watched Dian, thinking that she looked unusually radiant. Was this radiant look caused by something Bill had said to her? She wondered, and the more she wondered, the angrier she got.

"The party was quite a success, Claire," Dian said. "Thanks so much for inviting me."

"Don't mention it," said Claire. She touched her lips carefully with a lipstick. "It was nice of you to help me out—"

"But what?" Dian said.

"But there's no need playing up to Bill any more," Claire went on.

"That was your idea, I imagine."

"No," said Bill. "It wasn't. It was mine. By the way, Mr. Carr and his party out-stayed us. They seemed to be having a good time, too."

"Yes," said Dian, "and I'm glad. By dancing with Aunt Martha and Mrs. Smithers, you started something, apparently. They got a taste of fun—and want to keep on."

"No fool like a middle-aged one," said Claire.

"I wouldn't say that," said Bill. "After all, Miss Martha's an attractive woman, and Jerome Carr's beginning to realize it."

"She may get him away from you yet, Dian," Claire said.

"Yes, may, yes."

Lifesaving's a Cinch - - If You Know How

(Wide World News Service)
DENVER—Sue Pickens, who weighs 100 pounds dripping wet, ran 50 yards in six seconds flat, swam another 30 yards and pulled out Chuck Bennett, weight 192, out of the lake. She wasn't even puffing.

"Sure," said Sue, pretty, blonde, bronzed and sinewy, "a lifeguard's job is swell for a girl. It's just a matter of learning a few tricks."

On the job for only a couple of weeks, Sue already had saved six persons from drowning in the municipal Washington Park swimming lake. Her crew, which includes three men, had saved 45.

She's one of nine girl lifeguards hired this year to work with the men guards. Next year all of Denver's lifeguards may be women.

"The women are that successful," says Bennett, who is a water safety instructor and tutored the Denver girl guards in lifesaving classes.

"We have been taught efficient ways of breaking the holds that drowning persons frequently resort to," says Sue. "It isn't hard to break these holds if you know the tricks. I suppose the methods are something like jiu jitsu. But I have practiced them on big, strong men and have been able to handle them, even in deep water."

"When you get in close to shore with them you give them the old fireman's carry, if they can't stand on their own legs, and tote them right along. It isn't hard after you practice a few times."

And what does a pretty blonde lifeguard do when some man makes passes that aren't a drowning man's floundering? Do they teach girl lifeguards what to do about that, too?

"Oh," said Sue, her smile stirring up a dimple. "We have a couple of ways of handling that. They usually catch on. I've never had to call a cop."

Juanita Smith July Bride of Charles Merritt

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith of East Temple Street, are announcing the marriage of their only daughter, Juanita, to Private Charles Robert Merritt of Sycamore Street.

The wedding was an event of Friday evening, July 17, at half past eight, at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alva Merritt, with Rev. Henry Leeth officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Merritt of Greenfield, brother and sister-in-law of the groom, were their attendants.

The bride, a pretty brunette, collected a white and wine silk jersey, with which she wore white accessories.

Her flowers were a corsage of red rose buds and baby breath. Mrs. James Merritt's costume was of poudre blue crepe with which she combined beige accessories and corsage of her rose buds.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Alva Merritt served a delicious wedding collation to the wedding party.

Mrs. Merritt is making her home at the present with her parents of 1132 East Temple Street, while her young husband is away at camp.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wolfe of Dayton, and Mr. and Mrs. James Merritt of Greenfield.

Ruth Ann Perrill Pretty Hostess To Gay Party

Miss Ruth Ann Perrill charmingly filled the role of a pretty young hostess, when she invited thirty friends to her lovely country home for a gay evening party on Tuesday.

Although summer rains spoiled the previously made plans for the outdoor supper, the weiners were cooked indoors and were as appetizing. Many favorite dishes of the young people were in addition, with the supper hour particularly gay and hilarious.

Dancing, games and other jolly pleasures were enjoyed by the boys and girls, with Miss Perrill a most cordial hostess from beginning to the end of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Perrill assisted their daughter in the entertaining.

Two Guests Are Included with Club Members

Mrs. Eugene Smith charmingly filled the role of hostess to a delightful party for her two table bridge club Tuesday afternoon, and included Mrs. Robert Terhune and Mrs. Henry Brownell, Jr., as guests with the members.

The home was attractively decorated with bouquets of flowers, in multi-colors and were greatly admired.

Two small tables seated the guests for the dessert course, which was most tempting.

Delightful pleasures were graciously extended by Mrs. Smith during the gay bridge game, with high score award going to Mrs. Terhune.

Sugar Grove WSCS

The Sugar Grove Women's Society of Christian Service met at the home of Mrs. O. F. Sturgeon for a most enjoyable afternoon, with Mrs. Herbert Hoppes and Mrs. Hugh Elliott as the assisting hostesses.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. Opal Hise, followed by the business meeting in charge of Mrs. Charles Hoppes.

Mrs. Leslie Sollars was a guest with the fourteen members and enjoyed the program, so carefully planned, on the life and songs of Stephen Foster.

A short spiritual life program was purely patriotic and closed with a circle of prayer.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

True Blue Class

Members of the Sugar Grove True Blue Class assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Merritt for the July meeting. The Scripture reading was by Frank Turner with the business hour conducted by president Mrs. George Anderson. Mrs. Frank Turner and Mrs. Elden Bethard provided the entertainment. Cooling refreshments served by the hostess brought the evening to a delightful close.

Mrs. Paul Strevey Gracious Hostess To Bridge Club

Mrs. Paul Strevey entertained with a luncheon-bridge party Tuesday, that was altogether a delightful affair of the midsummer season.

It was the regular meeting of her bridge club, for which a full contingent of members were present.

Large bouquets of midsummer blooms were placed advantageously throughout the rooms, for which Mrs. Strevey, who is so adept with flowers, was highly commended.

The two course luncheon was particularly delicious, with seasonal viands most appetizing on a hot summer day.

The bridge game was exceptionally gay, with high score trophies going to Mrs. Howard S. Harper and Mrs. Colin C. Campbell.

Crusaders Class Enjoys Party at Xenia Pool

A swimming party in Xenia, Tuesday evening, provided a good time for eighteen members of the Crusaders Class of the Church of Christ who motored there for their July social meeting.

Several members took advantage of the cool swim until a late hour after which the entire group made up a dinner party in Xenia.

Those attending the affair were Rev. and Mrs. Fred I. Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Holland, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Davis, Kenneth Bennett, Coyt Stoekey, Dwight Davis, Sarah Reeves, Dorothy Wasson, Alice Naomi Davis, Marcia Highley, Christine Switzer, Phyllis Adkins and Mrs. Wayne Pierson.

Women of the Moose Party

On Monday evening the Women of the Moose included the members of the Loyal Order of Moose and gave a farewell party for Mr. George Sexton and Mr. Howard Thomas who are leaving soon to enter military service. There was a large number present and a fried chicken supper with all other seasonable viands were greatly enjoyed.

Mr. James F. Wells, of Northampton, Massachusetts, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. John Babbitt, Mr. Babbitt and family.

YANKS MAKE THINGS HOT FOR JAPS WHEN THEY RAID ALEUTIAN BASES

and warehouses in the fort installation were hit and began to burn.

A Zero attacked another Catalina in the air, but the big boat's gunners fought him off. An American fighter pilot was severely injured after being shot down by Zeros.

The anti-aircraft began to shoot and bellow all around the harbor as the first Jap plane broke through the mist. Gunners on a seaplane tender lying in the harbor knocked down two fighters and a bomber and hits were claimed on others.

Unlike Pearl Harbor, Dutch Harbor was ready for attack with everything but weather. Weather along the Aleutians is never favorable for anything but getting lost.

Our Catalinas and the Army's big fortress bombers were out searching even before the first plane appeared. Within an hour of the second attack one "Cat," snooping through the mist, stumbled on an aircraft carrier lurking south of Unalak, the next big island west of Unalak.

By midafternoon a second carrier was spotted in the Bering Sea above the island chain.

A ranging P-39 fighter encountered two Jap cruiser type observation planes in Unalak Pass and shot one down in flames. The other got away. Other enemy planes were seen 200 miles farther east off Sandpoint on Popoff Island in the Shumagin group.

Dutch Harbor found the going hotter when the second attack materialized shortly after noon. The first planes had stayed 9,000 feet up to drop their loads.

The second wave by three closely-spaced three-plane bomber sections was the Jap version of dive bombing. American dive bombers favor letting go all holds and coming down in vertical plunges. The Japs dive at angles of 30 to 40 degrees, but seem to do fairly well with their method.

They dropped six sticks of 500-pound bombs each, shooting for the Navy radio installation and fuel tanks. They scored on the radio, putting it out of commission for several hours. They achieved near misses alongside several old wooden fuel tanks and managed, believe it or not, to hit the only hospital in 500 miles.

The planes retired northward, pursued by fighters.

Weather defeated efforts to maintain contact with the invaders.

The Catalinas stayed in the air all night. Early the next day they came on two Jap carriers and two destroyers heading southeast 200 miles below Segun Island.

American attack groups converged from every base in the islands. They came from as far away as Kodiak, 600 miles eastward.

The day's operation order was a marvel of military brevity. "Land-ream, refuel-attack," it said.

Fortress and B-26 bombers joined the Catalinas, but it was like boxing blindfolded. One fortress went out into the fog and never came back. Others went out, hunted until their gas gave out, landed to refuel and went back to the job. The questing planes picked up one carrier again at noon, finding two cruisers in company. Contact was established again at 5 P. M. and yet again at 9 P. M.

A few minutes later 10 Zero fighters, 10 dive-bombing Kokekikas and eight torpedo planes were diving into black and yellow anti-aircraft bursts from the harbor's guns.

The Japs came twisting down to lay their bombs in the area of hangars, barracks, shops and fuel storage. This second day's raid was more effective than the first. Provisionally American casualties were few.

The attacks were driven home viciously, but the defenders regarded the damage as something less than serious. No attack by so few planes can hope to knock out a well established base.

Except for a subsequent weak attempt against Unalak Island, the second day's raid has been the last against American bases in the Aleutians—unless the occupation of empty Kiska and Attu constitutes attack.

CRISIS IS FACING ALLIES IN SHIPPING AS U-BOAT WAR THREATENS SUPPLIES

tinues within the limits of its available supply of labor and materials but the volume is not large. The great bulk of new shipping must come from American yards supplemented by the production of Canadian yards, which turn out a relatively small tonnage compared to the United States.

Ship 'Pool' Looms

The report said that because of losses the shipping administration has had to accelerate the application of its policy to limit space in ships under its jurisdiction to cargoes essential to prosecution of the war, whether the cargoes are for export or for import.

This policy, it said, has been applied through the United Nations shipping pool to all ships. Shipping losses, the Alaskan battle and all military aspects of the war would come under a supreme general staff.

Military and naval men who declined to be quoted by name talked of the possibility that such an unprecedented command organization might include General George C. Marshall, Army chief and Admiral Ernest J. King, director of naval operations.

Whether an air officer might also be named was not known but the name of Lieut. General Henry H. Arnold, chief of Army Air Forces figured prominently in speculation.

Mr. Roosevelt gave no information as to exactly what the functions of Leahy's position would be. Military and naval authorities indicated his duties might involve decision of questions of high military and naval policy turned over to him by the President, advising the President on grand strategic problems, and clearing all military and naval matters before they reached Mr. Roosevelt's desk.

To the discharge of these vital duties the 67-year-old Admiral brings a practical experience of 42 years in the Navy, running through active service in the World War and ending in 1939 when he was retired after 20 years as chief of naval operations.

In retirement, he was governor of Puerto Rico until November, 1940, when he was appointed U. S. ambassador to France.

In making Leahy his chief of staff, Mr. Roosevelt has in effect interposed a ranking officer between himself and General Marshall and Admiral King with whom he has heretofore dealt directly.

He has not laid aside any of his constitutional responsibilities as commander-in-chief of the armed forces but apparently has delegated the carrying out of many of them to Leahy who will be able to devote much more time to strictly military questions than could Mr. Roosevelt.

sult a serious shortage has developed." Williams said: "I think the situation is general to some extent, but whether it is as bad in other places I don't know. This is the first news I've had other than a smattering of here, there and yonder. I don't have any more idea what is causing it... but we're going to find out promptly and try to correct it."

Some packers who declined to be named told The Beacon Journal new regulations effective July 13 brought the situation to a head. These regulations made changes in grading of cuts of beef and veal, in which the principal shortages were reported here. One dealer reported he was

GRAIN MARKET NEWS SUMMARY

CHICAGO, July 22.—(AP)—A firm undertone prevailed in the wheat pit today on buying attributed primarily to mills. Hedge selling was small but buyers were encouraged by the falling off in the movement of the winter wheat crop.

Corn prices also remained firm, although failing to rally with wheat late in the session. Traders said country offerings of corn are not pressing because the feeding value of corn is high and commercial use of the grain is much above average. Wheat closed ½ cent higher, July 1.17½¢, Sept. 1.20-1.20½¢; and corn was ¼ cent lower, July 88½¢, Sept. 90½-¼¢. Oats finished ¾¢ higher, rye ¾¢ up and soybeans ¼¢ lower to ¼¢ higher.

Receipts of cash wheat at primary markets of 1,794,000 bushels showed a reduction of 649,000 bushels from a week ago and compared with 3,019,000 bushels a year ago.

paying 23½ to 24 cents a pound for a cut of beef that he cannot sell for more than 22 cents under the maximum price ceiling. Another reported veal costing 30 cents dressed had to be sold for 25 cents.

At Cleveland, a livestock yards spokesman said June, July and August always are months of light receipts and this year they are lighter than usual, tending to raise prices. The government, he added, is taking about 45 percent of pork products, a lesser percentage of beef and as high as 65 percent of the lard. If it were not for these war purchases, he added, the market would be glutted and prices down.

This specialist declared that "if the retail ceilings were raised then livestock prices would be liable to climb up some more." He asked that his name not be used.

In Cincinnati, a meat packing center so important that even a century ago it was known as "Porkopolis," packers reported they were reducing hog-kills by at least a third and beef by 25 to 35 percent.

QUIZ PROGRAM MARKS MEETING OF ROTARY CLUB

Questions All Pertained to Washington C. H. and Fayette County

A quiz program devoted entirely to Washington C. H. and Fayette County people and places, proved a very entertaining diversion following the regular luncheon of the Rotary Club at the Country Club Tuesday.

The program was in charge of Frank Jackson who called out the names of various members and asked each one to answer some one question he read from a list of more than 50 such queries. The way many of those interrogated hesitated over answers and the eagerness with which some of the older resident members of the club sought to display their knowledge of Washington and Fayette County history caused Jackson to frequently break in with the usual "no coaching, please" and "five seconds only now."

In order that others may have an opportunity to test their knowledge of happenings and people in this community, a few of the questions are reproduced here without answers. How many can you answer?

- Where is English Addition? Bulltail? Gashouse? Shady-side?
- Where was Dr. Judy's office?
- Who got our government postoffice?
- When Will Dale first went in business what method of advertising did he use?
- Whose ashes were scattered from the Courthouse tower?
- What did he do?
- Who fought a gun battle with Noah Bell in which both were shot?
- Which star in the flag represents Ohio?
- Where was John Stepter when our big cyclone took place?
- Where was C. L. Craig's factory?
- Where was the first glove factory located?
- Where was P. Hagerty shoe factory first located?
- Where was the wheel factory?
- Who patented one of the best folding chairs?
- What two men had more patents than probably all the rest in Washington C. H.?
- How many shoe factories were in Washington C. H. at one time?
- What Fayette County horse was sold to the Czar of Russia for $50,000?
- Who owned Bobbie Burns?
- What was he noted for?
- Where was the handle factory?
- Who was the officer in charge of militia who ordered his men to shoot through the Courthouse door during the famous riot here?
- Who was sheriff at that time?
- Where was the first large foundry in Washington C. H.?
- Who was first president of the Washington Country Club?
- Who was first president of Fayette County Auto Club?
- What was the present Moose Hall first built for?
- Who was Morris Shap? Mills Gardner?
- How did George Melvin put Washington C. H. "on the map"?
- The answers to these questions will appear in an early issue of The Record-Herald. Watch for them.

TRIO QUESTIONED ABOUT ROBBERY

They Deny Guilt but Victim Identifies Them

Vess Jordan, Leonard W. Estep, of South Charleston, and Sarah Ann Morter, Sedalia, are still being held on open charges at the Xenia jail in connection with the robbery of George Kimball, 60, who was robbed of $72 and thrown out of an automobile, near Jamestown, Monday.

Kimball identified the trio as the ones he claimed assaulted and robbed him and left him in a ditch at the roadside.

MRS. ALMIRA WOOD DIES IN COLUMBUS

Funeral services for Mrs. Almira Wood, widow of William Wood, who died at the home of her daughters in Columbus Tuesday, will be held at Sugar Grove Church, six miles south of Washington C. H., Thursday at 2 P. M. and burial made in the cemetery adjacent to the church. Mrs. Wood resided at South Salem.

Mrs. Wood was born in Jackson County May 28 1861, and was the mother of Mrs. Elden Bethards, of the Sugar Grove community, where friends may call until the hour of the funeral.

In addition to her daughter in this county, she is survived by three other daughters: Miss Mayme Wood, Miss Lulu Wood and Miss Artie Wood, all of Columbus, and by one son, Lewis, of Columbus. Mrs. George Riley, Cleveland, is a sister, and John

CAMPAIGN FOR OLD RECORDS LAUNCHED HERE

Legionnaires Want 6,875 Old Records To Help Win the War

Fayette countians are asked to donate 6,875 phonograph records to help furnish music for America's armed forces.

The American Legion is in charge of this nationwide drive for old records, and R. B. Tharp has been named general chairman of the drive in Fayette County, where the quota of records has been set at 6,875.

Collecting points have been established in Washington C. H., Bloomingburg, Jeffersonville and Milledgeville, and one will also be located in Good Hope.

Citizens generally who have records are asked to take them to the nearest collecting point, and if it is impossible to take the records, then to call Tharp at the Probate Judge's office.

The records can be left at the Legion Hall in Memorial Hall in Washington C. H.; at Robert Jefferson's office in Bloomingburg; with Harry Seibert, in Jeffersonville and Harry Hiser in Milledgeville. The collecting point in Good Hope will be announced soon.

The campaign is now under way, and will last only a short time, so owners of records are asked to act promptly.

This campaign has no connection with any other salvage effort.

It is being carried on by local American Legion posts and Auxiliary units.

The goal in Ohio is 2,013,500 old records; in the nation, 37,500,000 records. Every local post has a quota which includes its auxiliary. Every Legionnaire and Auxiliary has a quota of 25 records.

The purpose is to scrap old records for their shellac, exchange shellac for brand-new records, which will provide American music for American fighting men, wherever they may be.

No money is being paid for old records, and nobody in the Legion or Auxiliary will receive money for them.

Assisting the Legion in Ohio and nationally is the entire amusement industry, including radio networks, the motion picture industry, the largest record producers.

Government officials have called this "the ideal conservation drive," because it utilizes otherwise useless material, turns it into materials of definite morale-building value to our fighting men; is conducted on a non-profit basis, and will achieve the greatest results in minimum time.

New records will be obtained at factory prices, will be selected by a committee of musical experts, and will be distributed by the War Department.

This campaign has the approval of the President's Committee on War Relief Agencies. The War Activities Committee of the Motion Picture Industry, and also has the "wholehearted endorsement" of Gov. John W. Bricker.

Holland, Frankfort, is a brother. Rev. G. A. Scott assisted by Rev. Taylor will conduct the services.

Washington C. H. Youth In Kent State U. Play

Donald Riber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arch O. Riber, will return to his home here this week end after spending the past five weeks at Kent State University at Kent.

Riber is one of the 25 high school students who were awarded a scholarship at this university to study dramatics, debate and radio during their summer session. The high school students, 23 girls and two boys, are under the supervision of Howard Hansen and E. Turner Stump, professors of speech at the University.

Broadcasting and special plays and classes take up much of the "cherub's" time. Riber took the lead in a Mexican play, one of three presented during the five weeks course.

Riber's courses at the university included advanced speech, stagecraft, make-up, lighting effects and modern radio work.

Riber will be a senior in Washington C. H. High School this fall. He is interested in movie and radio work, his ambition being to become a director of musical comedies. He directed a play, "The Perils of Pearl Ella," here two years ago and wrote and directed the "Follies," a part of the program and amateur show sponsored by the Dramatic Club last year.

Sara L. Keck, English and dramatics teacher at WHS, obtained the scholarship for Riber and coached him last year.

DRAFT CHANGES ARE ANNOUNCED BY STATE BOARD

Family Relationship Is To Be Protected As Far as Possible

Word has been received by the Fayette County Selective Service Board of an amendment to the Selective Service Act which, insofar as practical, will protect the bonafide relationship as long as possible.

The word comes from Major General Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, and will be carried out by the Fayette County Board as well as all other boards.

At the same time, National Selective Service Headquarters announced distribution to its agencies of a list of 34 broad essential activities compiled by the War Manpower Commission. The list, which includes under broad activity classifications, "the products, facilities, and services considered necessary to war production and essential to the support of the war effort," was prepared to guide local boards when considering individual registrants for occupational classifications but in no way alters the statutory ban on group deferments.

With regard to protection of family relationships and dependents, National Headquarters issued amendments to its Regulations and a memorandum supplementing recently outlined broad policies for induction of single men with dependents and married men who maintain bona fide family relationships in their homes with wives, children, or both.

Broadly, the amendments and memorandum break down Class III-A and Class III-B (the first for the registrant with dependents who does not contribute to the war effort, and second, for the registrant with dependents who does contribute to the war effort) so that when selecting men for induction the local boards may give consideration to both their dependency status and activity in war work.

COST OF OPA

COLUMBUS, July 22—(AP)—Edward C. Welch, assistant regional executive for the office of price administration, estimated that expenditures for state administration of price control would be 45 cents per capita a year.

MRS. JESSIE ROWE DIES IN CALIFORNIA

Funeral and Burial Will Take Place Here

Mrs. Jessie V. Rowe, 64, widow of John Rowe, died Tuesday forenoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Rogers Eikenberry, at Santa Rosa, Calif., where she had been visiting the past eight months.

Mrs. Rowe had been a lifelong resident of Fayette County and much of the time resided in this city.

She was the widow of the late John Rowe, and leaves wide family connections and a large circle of friends in this community.

Surviving are three sisters: Mrs. W. W. Trovillo, of Frankfort; Mrs. J. J. Kelley and Mrs. Lydia Williams, of this city. Also two grandchildren, Charles and Rowe Ellen Eikenberry, of California.

Funeral services and burial will be made here, the time to be announced later, and the Hook Funeral Home has charge of arrangements.

An editorial, taken from the Washington C. H. Record-Herald of July 18, 1942, contains so much vital information, we believe it is well worth repeating. It follows.

YOU ARE THE GOVERNMENT

With taxes a tremendously growing burden on every citizen in the United States, the people must take an increasing interest in all affairs of government, from the smallest school district to Congress itself.

Taking an interest in the affairs of government does not mean to merely sit back and kick after assessments have been levied. Instead, study the legitimate needs of government and sift them out of the thousand and one purely political items that have crept into public budgets.

The people must begin talking to or writing to their city councils, their local school boards, their county courts, their tax commissions, their state legislators—and last, but not least, their congressmen and senators who are today levying taxes which are taking the lion's share of the tax payments of every individual, every business and every industry.

Your congressmen are anxious to know what you think about various measures proposed which deflate your pocket-book. They cannot know if you never express your opinions. A postcard message from a man on the soil, a workman in an industry or a small businessman struggling to meet the tax problems, is the best index of public thinking. There should be sacrifice and economy in government, just as there is sacrifice and economy and scrimping in every home in the land.

Let your public officials know how you feel on legislative and taxation policies that affect every job, every industry and every dime of savings. The future of representative government is in the hands of the people in more ways than one. Remember, you are the government. Don't expect it to be any better than the thought you contribute to it.
